Background:

Nipissing University is an associate member of the University Council for Educational Administration (UCEA). The Nipissing University Centre for the Study of Leadership and Ethics (NUCSLE) was established in 2009 by Dr. Paul Begley, who served as Founding Director until his retirement in 2011. The current director of NUCSLE is Dr. Ron Wideman, Professor of Education, Nipissing University.

NUCSLE is home to the fully refereed Journal of Authentic Leadership in Education (JALE). Further information about NUCSLE and JALE may be found at <http://csle.nipissingu.ca/>.

NUCSLE is one of seven program centres that together comprise the Centre for the Study of Leadership and Ethics of the University Council for Educational Administration (UCEA CSLE). The UCEA CSLE was founded in 1996 by Dr. Paul Begley. Dr. Chris Branson, University of Waikato, Hamilton, New Zealand, is currently Executive Director following Paul's retirement in 2011. The member centres of the UCEA CSLE are housed at the following universities:

- Australian Catholic University
- Nipissing University
- Pennsylvania State University
- Temple University
- The Hong Kong Institute of Education
- Umea University, Sweden
- University of Virginia.

The UCEA CSLE is devoted to the support, promotion and dissemination of theory and research on values and leadership. CSLE has become recognized within UCEA as one of its most productive program centres with a 15-year record of sustained publishing, research, and dissemination activity. It also has acquired an international reputation as the preeminent source of expertise and published information on the nature and influence of values on educational leadership. The annual values and leadership conference (<http://www.acu.edu.au/411686>) is probably the UCEA CSLE's best-known product.

The UCEA CSLE is home to the Values and Ethics in Educational Administration (VEEA) refereed journal. Further information about the UCEA CSLE and VEEA may be found at www.ucea.org/leadership-ethics/.
