

The Third Annual International Summer Colloquium: Values and Leadership: Mentoring for Educational Sustainability

Sponsored by the Nipissing University
Centre for the Study of Leadership and Ethics (NUCSLE)
Thursday July 10, 2014 (1:00-4:00 p.m.)

Please join us at Nipissing University's North Bay Campus for the 2014 International Summer Colloquium. The purpose of this colloquium is to generate critical discussion around the importance of ethical issues in research methods and authentic approaches to successful mentoring of graduate students.

The Colloquium is an integral part of Nipissing University's summer institute on Educational Sustainability for PhD candidates. Nipissing University faculty, PhD and MEd candidates, alumni, and other interested educators are all invited to attend.

We will also be sharing current information and encouraging participants to attend the 19th Annual Values and Leadership Conference to be held at Deerhurst Resort, Huntsville, Ontario, 18-20 September, 2014.

Presenters:

William (Bill) Frick (University of Oklahoma):

Practicing a Professional Ethic: Leadership for Students' Best Interests.

Kathrine Gutierrez (University of Oklahoma):

Phenomenological Research Methods and Graduate Student Mentoring

Background:

Nipissing University is an associate member of the University Council for Educational Administration (UCEA). The Nipissing University Centre for the Study of Leadership and Ethics (NUCSLE) was established in 2009 by Dr. Paul Begley, who served as Founding Director until his retirement in 2011. The current Director is Dr. Ron Wideman, Professor of Education, Nipissing University. NUCSLE is home to the fully refereed Journal of Authentic Leadership in Education (JALE). Further information about NUCSLE and JALE may be found at <http://csle.nipissingu.ca/>.

NUCSLE is one of seven program centres that together comprise the Centre for the Study of Leadership and Ethics in Education of the University Council for Educational Administration (UCEA CSLEE). The UCEA CSLEE was founded in 1996 by Dr. Paul Begley. Dr. Chris Branson, University of Waikato, Hamilton, New Zealand, is currently Executive Director. The member centres of the UCEA CSLE are housed at the following universities:

- Australian Catholic University
- Nipissing University
- Pennsylvania State University
- Temple University
- The Hong Kong Institute of Education
- Umea University, Sweden
- University of Virginia.

The UCEA CSLEE is devoted to the support, promotion and dissemination of theory and research on values and leadership. CSLEE has become recognized within UCEA as one of its most productive program centres with a 15-year record of sustained publishing, research, and dissemination activity. It also has acquired an international reputation as the preeminent source of expertise and published information on the nature and influence of values on educational leadership. The annual values and leadership conference (<http://hmackey.wix.com/valuesandleadership>) is probably the UCEA CSLE's best-known product. The UCEA CSLE is home to the Values and Ethics in Educational Administration (VEEA) refereed journal. Further information about the UCEA CSLE and VEEA may be found at www.ucea.org/leadership-ethics/.
